

Third Culture Kids

Thursday, 24th May 2012

Here you are in Singapore (and you may have lived in other foreign countries). Your children are in a position to explore cultures and experience lifestyles that are very different from your own. While there are many benefits to this situation, there are also challenges. This workshop will identify strategies you can use to maximize the benefit to your children and enhance their ability to meet the challenges.

About the Facilitator...

Richard Logan holds a Masters of Social Science (Counseling) from the University of South Australia; a Bachelor of Arts in Psychology and Sociology from the University of Queensland, Australia; and a Diploma of Teaching in Primary and Special Education from the Brisbane College of Advanced Education.

Richard has worked with children/teenagers and their families for over twenty-five years. Richard has clinical experience working with children, teenagers and adults. Richard works with: relational issues including communication, (pre) marriage, divorce, parenting, conflict resolution; emotional issues including anxiety, depression, grief/loss, guilt, anger management; stress reduction, time management, transition, addiction and personal growth. Richard works with a solution oriented approach informed by techniques/interventions from other schools of thought..
